Mr. Jos: Di Benedetto was given a birthday party last week at the home of his son George Di Benedetto. Mr. Joe celebrated his 93rd birthday and is the oldest active fisherman we think in Bay St. Louis. The only reason he hasn't been out lately is due to the inclement weather, otherwise he would be out on the highway bridge or up Jordan River. Mr. Joe has loved the outdoors all his life, fishing and hunting has been his fayorite pastimes and like the Old Ranger on Death Valley Days being conducted in February on television, has lots of interest-the Louisiana Wild Life and ing stories to tell of his past evperiences of years ago. Congratulations Mr. Joe and many more

The impact knocked the patrol car backwards and turned it over on its top. Button said the Nash sedan being pursued continued westward without stopping, ac cording to the witness. Button said Eady stopped, ran to the wrecked patrol car, saw Blanton was seriously hurt but was unable to open the jammed doors. He said Eady then ran to a residence to summon an ambulance and to notify the patrol substation in Gulfport.

Returning to the wreck, Patrolman Button said Eady, with assistance of other passersby who had stopped, was able to turn the patrol car back over on its wheels, open a door and extricate Blanton. District Eight Inspector M. E. Fulks said officers have been unable to locate Blanton's service revolver, a .357 Magnum, Smith &

Wesson with five inch parrel. The weapon is owned by the state and its serial number is re gistered with all law enforcement agencies, he noted.

The wrecked patrol car, a 1983 Buick sedan, is considered a total loss. The front was crushed in the windshield shattered and the sleering column broken. THE STREET
